JUNK MAN BADLY BURNED IN GAS TANK EXPLOSION

A junk dealer from Chicago Hts., was quite badly burned at Mokena in a rather peculiar accident Tuesday noon. The man had bought an old car at the Cooper & Hostert Garage and was wrecking the car for junk. He had built a small fire to burn up the wooden parts of the car. As he was wrecking the car he threw the metal parts on a pile.

When he tore out the gas tank he did not stop to look if there was any gasoline in the tank but tossed the tank on the junk heap. The tank rolled into the fire and exploded the burning fluid being showered on the man. His clothes caught fire in an instant and in the excitement he started to run, the wind fanning the flames still more. Fred Cappel and Harold Cooper saw the man looking like a human torch and chased after him and smothered the flames. Nearly all the clothes were burned off his body and the hair on his head was badly singed. He was taken to the St. James hospital at Chicago Hts. by Dr. E. G. MacMahon of Mokena.

May Organize Mokena Garden Club This Summer

A number of Mokena women interested in garden work met in the home of Mrs. Harry Mall, Wednesday afternoon to talk over the prospect of organizing a Mokena Garden Club.

It was decided by those present, to hold a public meeting of all Mokena women who would like to join this new organization.

Everyone interested is most cordially invited to join. The place and date to be published in next week's bulletin.

Paul Rauhoff Elected President Tinley Lions Club

Paul H. Rauhoff, Tinley Park realtor was elected president of the Tinley Park Lions Club Monday, succeeding Henry C. Vogt, who was the first president of the club. Mr. Vogt thanked all the members for their loyal support and wished the new president much success and declared he hoped the members would accord him as equal a loyal support. Mr. Vogt treated the Lions with a feed consisting of sandwiches, olives, lemonade, cake, ice cream, cigars.

Fred Goebel, the faithful secretary-treasurer of the Lions was unanimously re-elected to his office and in addition he was elected third vice-president. He also made an appropriate address in which he heartily thanked all the Lions for their co-operation and expressed the wish that the local Lions club may prosper and increase its activities.

Mr. Goebel also made a fine suggestion for increasing interest, in club meeting attendance by way of a baseball game contest of which we will tell you more later.

Other officers elected are: First vice-president, John Poorman; Harry Mager, second vice-president; Tail Twister, Clyde Rice; John C. Andres, Lion Tamer.

Since the Lions Club has been in existence during the past fifteen months they have accomplished a great many things for the civic good of the community, among the outstanding accomplishments being the naming of the streets and placing name plates on the streets; sponsoring an annual cleanup day; installing public drinking fountains; the establishment of the Tinley Park Times, the local community paper; decorating the interior of the Saenger hall.

J. C. Funk Sets Attendance Record

J. C. Funk, Tinley Park merchant and charter member of the Tinley Lions Club holds the perfect attendance record of Lion club meetings. The Tinley Lions have held 43 meetings since they were organized a little over a year ago, and Mr. Funk has not missed a meeting.

Motorist Shown How to Drive

Last week one day a motorist in a great hurry sped thru Tinley at a 70 mile an hour clip. He was arrested by Officer George Smith. When asked if he knew how fast he had driven thru Tinley, the stranger replied if I was going as fast as I was thinking, I was going some. Officer Smith took the motorist to the Rock Island crossing and told him to start out right and pass thru town which he was only to glad to do and escape a fine.

Celebrate July 4th in Tinley

Lions Club and Legion Post Sponsoring Big Fourth of July Observance At Tinley Park

The Tinley Park Lions Club is planning on the biggest Fourth of July celebration ever seen in Tinley. A wonderful parade in which motor car floats, hand drawn floats and funny characters will be one of the big features. The Stanley Sullivan Post of the American Legion of Chicago will head the parade with their drum and bugle corp. The following prizes are to be awarded for the best floats and characters: 1st $10.00; 2nd $7.50; 3rd $5.00; 4th $2.50. Most comic lady $2.50; Most comic gent $2.50.

The parade will start promptly at 5 o'clock standard time or 6 o'clock daylight saving time. At the close of the parade the evening festivities will begin in the Linden Garden and the Saenger Hall. This hall has been transformed into a veritable fairyland thru the decorators art. It will be wonderfully lighted and will present a real wonderland appearance. The Lions Club and George Lorenz have sponsored the decorating of this hall.

A big dance will be the feature of the evening. The music will be furnished by Benson's Blue Jackets with Johnny Mullaney. Featured in radio broadcasts over stations WGN and W L S.

If you want to enjoy yourself be sure and plan to spend your 4th in Tinley Park and participate in the real festivities and enjoy the hospitality of the genial roaring Lions of Tinley Park and you will enjoy such a fine time that you will not forget it. Bring your friends and come early and stay late for the afternoon and evening will be replete with many interesting events. Just forget all your every day cares and celebrate Independence Day in a care-free way with the Tinley Lions.

TINLEY TRIANGLE TALKIES

(NOTE—Beginning with this issue of this paper, the Triangle Club of Tinley Park will have a column of news. They'll be of interest to you as they will keep you in touch with everything that's going on in this club.)

How do you like the title of this column?

On Sunday, June 23 the Red Sox (No, there not in the American League) a colored team defeated the Triangle club team by a score of 14 to 2.

The colored team furnished many laughs. One of the comical things they did was rubbing the mascots head before they went up to the plate. Very superstitious these colored lads. Take it from us there real sports and great ball players.

Art Becks has taken over the reigns of the Triange baseball team. Yes, and he means business. Come out and see a team with pep play real ball. Becks succeeded the ever capable C. Goessel.

Here's your chance to see the Triangle team in action. They play the Blue Island Friscos on Sunday, June 30. The last time these two teams met, the Triangle's were defeated by 11 to 8. So you can see that the Triangle's will be out for "blood", this Sunday, June 30, at Tinley.

All Triangle members please note: There will be a very important meet ing next Monday night, July 1, at 8 o'clock sharp, at the club house as usual.

The Triangle club is up and doing again. Let me give you a tip. Watch this club's action from now on. No foolin'!

"Wanted"—New members to join Triangle club. Must have ambition, pep and be at all meetings. Report to any meeting. Meetings every other Monday. Come over on July 1.

See you next week.

TINLEY GARDEN CLUB NOTES

BY Mrs. John Swisher SUNDIALS

Straight and tall, in the old time garden. Brilliant hued are the hollyhocks, Peering down as the sun sinks lower. To tell the time by the four o'clocks.

The Tinley Park Garden club held an all day meeting last Friday, June 21 at the home of Mrs. E. Moss, in the country. A most delicious luncheon was served out under the trees where all present enjoyed the balmy breeze, and bird-song. After the business meeting, numerous games were played, and on departing the ladies proclaimed a most delightful time.

The next meeting will be Mrs. Swisher's, but it will be held at the Anderson home, Friday July 19th, at two o'clock.

I understand that Mrs. John Boey carried away some ribbons at the Blue Island Flower Show.

this week, one being located in the depot square across the street from the Funk store, the other one being located west of the Vogt store. The two fountains are a big benefit and a real credit to the civic spirit of the Tinley Park Lions Club.

TINLEY LEGION POST NEWS

The big event for the Tinley Post of the American Legion will take place on the afternoon of the 4th of July when the Legion colors will be dedicated with appropriate exercises at the Community Hall in Tinley Park commencing at 3 p. m., daylight saving time. The Stanley Sullivan Post of Chicago, the Midlothian Post and a number of prominent speakers will assist in the dedication of the colors. Everyone in the community is invited to attend this patriotic ceremony.

The Tinley Park Post of the American Legion have issued an invitation to the Tinley Park Garden Club thru their chairman, Mrs. R. J. Hug to participate in the color dedication ceremony.

The Tinley Park Legion Boys are now engaged in planning for a hop they will sponsor at the Saenger hall July 27th.

Mrs. W. B. Combs Entertains Guests

Mrs. Wallace Butler Combs, founder and organizer of the Tinley Park Garden Club entertained in her beautiful home, Idylwild, which was the scene of gay activity Monday, June the 24th, when a group of women definitely interested in gardening gathered to spend the day. The tables were spread for forty, who partook of a most delicious luncheon. The simple, rather inconspicuous manner in which Mrs. Combs, as hostess, entertained her guests, was outstanding. One of the speakers of the day was Maude Jacobs from the Garfield Park, conservatory who gave a most delightful, as well as educational talk on orchids.

Presidents, who spoke on various subjects of gardening were Mrs. Charles Caldwell, State Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Richard McClure, 3rd district President; Mrs. Fred Waterman, president of the Hamilton Park Woman's club; Mrs. Herman Sharp, Auburn Park thirty; Mrs. McClaren Christie, Palos Park club; Mrs. R. J. Hug, Tinley Park Garden club.

Chairmen present were as follows: Mrs. Wm. Donaldson representing Hamilton Park with eighteen of her Garden circle members; Mrs. E. C. Williams, Englewood Woman's club; Mrs. A. James, Auburn Thirty; Miss Georgia Mynard, Harvey; Mrs. Donald McClure, Chicago Heights; Mrs. Griffith, Ivanhoe; Mrs. Fred Arnold, Neighborhood House Women's club.

There were also present garden circle members from Palos Park, Gresham Woman's club, and Tinley Park Garden club. At the close of the afternoon, delicious fruit punch and cake was served out under the beautiful trees. Mrs. Combs was thanked profusely by all for this most delightful occasion.

Wabash Limited Hits Auto; 1 Killed

The 95th street crossing of the Wabash railroad in Oak Lawn was the scene of a fatal automobile accident last Sunday when the Wabash crack passenger train "The Banner Blue" struck an auto on this crossing. The accident happened at 7:11 daylight saving time. Joseph F. Wesley and his wife Mary of 4125 S. Rockwell street, Chicago were in the automobile. Mr. Wesley was critically injured. Mrs. Wesley was fatally injured. Both were taken to the St. Francis hospital, Blue Island by Chief John Cleveland of Oak Lawn. Mrs. Wesley died at the hospital about 9:30. According to an eye witness the car stalled on the track.

Bright Lights Cause Serious Accident

Wolf road south of Mokena near to the Lincoln highway was the scene of a serious auto accident on Saturday night. A car driven by Jeff Ludwig and Martin Kollman of Orland Park was crowded off the highway by a passing car with glaring headlights which blinded Mr. Ludwig and he failed to see a small bridge ahead of him and his car crashed into it. Mr. Kollman was thrown thru the windshield, sustaining deep cuts and bruises on the head. He was taken to the office of Dr. E. G. MacMahon in Mokena and from there he was taken to the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet where he remained until Sunday. Fifteen stitches were taken to close the wounds. Mr. Ludwig escaped injury. About $100 damage was done to the car. The motorist responsible for the accident did not stop.

Truck Hits Sedan; No One Hurt

The intersection of 143rd Street and Keane Avenue east of Orland was the scene of a bad auto collision one day last week when a Nash Sedan with four passengers in it was hit by a South Towns Laundry truck. The Sedan was rolled over 3 times, but no one was hurt. The only damage was to the cars on which fenders and bumpers were broken.

Collect $40 In Dog Licenses

The recent drive put on in Mokena for the collection of dog tax, resulted in the collection of $40. This is the first time in many years that the dog was so well collected.

St. Michaels' Plan 4th of July Picnic

Much activity prevails among the people of St. Michael church, Orland Park, in preparation for the annual picnic to be held on Independence Day at the grove on 143rd St. A chicken dinner served country style, races, games, music, refreshments and distribution of prizes will be among the features of the day's entertainment. There will be "Something doing" from morning until mid night.

John Liess Re-Appointed village treas

John Liess who has served as village treasurer of Mokena was re-appointed for the ensuing year at the meeting of the village board on Wednesday night.

To Oil and Sand Mokena Streets

At the meeting of the Mokena council Wednesday night the committee on streets was authorized to purchase 8,000 gallons of road oil for oiling the village streets. The order is to be placed with the Standard Oil Company who are to apply the oil. To prevent the oil from picking a coating of torpedo sand is to be given the oil coating. The streets are to be oiled about July 8 or 9.

Delinquents Pay

At the meeting of the Mokena council Wednesday it was reported that all delinquent vehicle licenses were turned over to an attorney for collection and that thru the month of June 45 delinquent licenses were paid. So now there remain unpaid about 15 licenses and legal action will be taken against them to enforce payment.

PUBLIC HEARING ON MOKENA'S $34,000 SEWER PROJECT TO BE HELD FRIDAY NIGHT, JULY 5

A public hearing on the $34,000 sewer project on which the Mokena Local Board of Improvements has been working for some time, will be held at the Mokena village hall on Friday night, July 5th at 7 p. m. standard time. Property owners wishing to file objections may do so at that time in person or by attorney. Written notices will be sent to the property owners Monday, July first.

The Board of Local Improvements have received permission from the State Board of Health to run the drainage into the Marti creek north of Mokena.

Property owners will be given an approximate estimate of the cost of the improvement as it affects their respective properties.

Margaret Doig of New Lenox Is A June Bride

On a beautiful green lawn flecked with sunshine, thru the leaves of the weaving branches of the fine old trees that seemed to bow in benediction, Margaret LaVonne Doig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Doig was married to Arthur Papke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Papke of Joliet, at the historic home of her parents in New Lenox, Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.

Fayette Shaw played the piano and Everett Shaw, Jr., played flute accompaniments while Mrs. Everett Shaw, Jr., herself a bride of a year, sang "At Dawning", by Cadman, and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" by Stultz, while the guests numbering more than a hundred, were seated picturesquely under the trees. Mrs. Shaw, who last year was Miss Florence Walz, sang with exquisite feeling, the circumstances added to the natural gifts of singer and players conspiring to produce peculiarly lovely harmonies.

When the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Fayette Shaw were heard, the pretty wedding cavalcade appeared, led by the Rev. Morrison Galloway, of Amboy, Ill., former pastor of the New Lenox M. E. church, an old friend of the bride's family, followed by the bridegroom, taking their places in the open space before the house, against a background of flowers.

Little Mary Jane Francis, six years old, in pink georgette, carrying a basket of flowers, was the flower girl preceding the bride leaning upon the arm of her father. The bride was charming in white Elizabeth crepe over ivory satin trimmed with lace and pearls. She wore a handsome necklace of pearls and brilliants, the gift of the bridegroom and carried a shower bouquet of butterfly roses and lilies of the valley, holding also a lace handkerchief carried by her mother at her own wedding 45 years ago. It was a ring ceremony, simple and beautiful, under the blue sky, with the Rev. Mr. Galloway officiating. The bride presented her wedding bouquet to her mother.

The Rev. Thomas Ream, present pastor of the M. E. church, gave the invocation at the wedding supper with the bride and bridegroom at

Orland Community News Notes

The Homer Dramatic Club will present their play "And Home Came Ted" at the Orland Park school, Saturday evening June 29, 8:30 p. m. (daylight saving time). It is a very entertaining comedy given under the direction of the Rev. Elmer C. Ohlert.

Between the acts music will be furnished by the Meyer sisters, Elmer Rowley and Ray White.

The Boy Scout troop will also have their public installation during the intermission of the play.

The Boy Scout troop of Orland Park has been officially organized and chartered under the national organization. The troop committee is composed of Mr. John J. Loebe, Mr. Schmiedecke, and Mr. Peter Wagner. Rev. Sanders is acting as temporary Scout Master.

The following boys are the charter members of the troop, Merrill Cooper, Jim Pomeroy, Gordon Kay, Eldon Nicolai, Norman Wagner, and Earl Schmidt. These boys will be presented with their certificates and installed as scouts Saturday evening June 29 at the school auditorium.

The boys are leaving for the scout camp at Buchanan, Michigan, July 15. They will be in camp for two weeks.

Mokena Alderman Goes to Mayo Bros.

Alderman John Balaz of Mokena who has been in poor health for sometime, has gone to Rochester, Minnesota to take treatments at the Mayo Brothers hospital.

Hand Caught In Motor; Loses Finger

While Wm. Jones residing west of Mokena was engaged in working on a motor, his hand got caught and a finger was torn off.

Many friends and relatives came from a distance to be present at the wedding ceremony and to greet once more the friends of the home circle. Among them were Major Frank D. Francis and Mrs. Francis who came from Washington, D. C. Major Francis is a cousin to the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. George Meharry and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Meharry of Champaign; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lynk, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Lynk, Manhattan; Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Ballou and Miss LaVonne Ballou, Whittier, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Masters, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Cooper, Springfield, were among the guests. The bride is the namesake of Miss Ballou, who was formerly of Rowan, Iowa.

Nearly every person present was a relative or a connection of the bride's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Papke left the same night for a brief honeymoon tour.

PASSING OF TWO GREAT AMERICANS

"JEFFERSON STILL LIVES."

John Adams smiled serenely, closed his tired eyes, and ended his active career. None of the bedside watchers told him that Jefferson, his bitter opponent and dear friend, had died two hours before.

July 4, it was, fifty years after the two patriots had affixed their signatures to the Declaration: "That these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, Free and Independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved."

Strange that July 4, which stands for the birth of America as a nation, should also mark the death of the two sons who did so much toward her creation. "All men are created equal." Those had been Jefferson's words when he was thirty-five years old. It was he who framed the Declaration of Independence. It was Adams who had taken the most active part in the debates that preceded the signing. "The colossus of that debate," Jefferson called Adams. And fifty years later, both men died within two hours of each other.

Those sessions before the Declaration was read to the American people were bitter and stormy. Not all the delegates believed in breaking away from the mother country.

Opposing political views caused the two men to drift apart. Adams, like Washington, was a Federalist, who believed in a strong central government. Jefferson led the Anti-Federalist party. He believed that the government was an agent for the states, not their master.

In later years when both men had retired from politics the old friendship was renewed with more warmth.

July 4, 1826, was the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, a gala day for the United States. The people wanted Adams and Jefferson to partake of the festivities, but Adams was ninety-one and Jefferson eighty-three. They were too worn by their long battle for freedom to leave home. While the gayety was at its height Jefferson passed away. A few hours later Adams followed, with his friend's name on his lips.

Adoption of Declaration by Congress

(From Jefferson's Autobiography.)

In Congress, Friday, June 7, 1776. The delegates from Virginia moved, in obedience to instructions from their constituents, that the Congress should declare that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent States, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved; that measures should be immediately taken for procuring the assistance of foreign powers, and a confederation be formed to bind the Colonies more closely together.

The House being obliged to attend at that time to some other business, the proposition was referred to the next day, and the members were ordered to attend punctually at 10 o'clock.

Saturday, June 8. They proceeded to take it into consideration and referred it to a committee of the whole, into which they immediately resolved themselves, and passed that day and Monday, the 10th, in debating on the subject.

It was argued by Wilson, Robert R. Livingston, E. Rutledge, Dickinson and others—

That, Though they were friends to the measure themselves, and saw the impossibility that we should ever again be united with Great Britain, yet they were against adopting them at this time;

That the conduct we had formerly observed was wise and proper now, of deferring to take any capital step till the voice of the people drove us into it;

That they were our power, and without them our declarations could not be carried into effect;

That the people of the Middle Colonies (Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, the Jerseys and New York) were not yet ripe for bidding adieu to British connection, but that they were fast ripening, and, in a short time, would join in the general voice of America.

On the other side, it was urged by J. Adams, Lee, Wythe and others, that no gentleman had argued against the policy or the right of separation, from Britain, nor had supposed it possible we should ever renew our connection; that they had only opposed its being now declared.

That the question was not whether, by a Declaration of Independence, we should make ourselves what we are not, but whether we should declare a fact which already exists.

That, as to the people or Parliament of England, we had always been independent of them, their restraints on our trade deriving efficacy from our acquiescence only and not from any rights they possessed of imposing them, and that so far our connection had been Federal only and was now dissolved by the commencement of hostilities.

That, as to the King, we had been bound to him by allegiance, but that this bond was now dissolved by his assent to the last act of Parliament, by which he declares us out of his protection, and by his levying war on us, a fact which had long ago proved us out of his protection; it being a certain position in law that allegiance and protection are reciprocal, the one ceasing when the other is withdrawn.

It appearing in the course of these debates that the Colonies of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and South Carolina were not yet matured for falling from the parent stem, but that they were fast advancing to that state, it was thought most prudent to wait a while for them, and to postpone the final decision to July 1; but, that this might occasion as little delay as possible, a committee was appointed to prepare a Declaration of Independence. The committee were John Adams, Dr. Franklin, Roger Sherman, Robert R. Livingston and myself.

Committees were also appointed at the same time to prepare a plan of confederation for the Colonies and to state the terms proper to be proposed for foreign alliance. The committee for drawing the Declaration of Independence desired me to do it. It was accordingly done, and being approved by them, I reported it to the House on Friday, the 28th of June, when it was read and ordered to lie on the table. On Monday, the 1st of July, the House resolved itself into a committee of the whole and resumed the consideration of the original motion made by the delegates of Virginia, which, being again debated through the day, was carried in the affirmative by the votes of New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Georgia.

South Carolina and Pennsylvania voted against it. Delaware had but two members present, and they were divided. The delegates from New York declared they were for it themselves and were assured their constituents were for it; but that their instructions having been drawn near a twelve-month before, when reconciliation was still the general object, they were enjoined by them to do nothing which should impede that object. They, therefore, thought themselves not justifiable in voting on either side, and asked leave to withdraw from the question; which was given them. The committee rose and reported their resolution to the House.

Mr. Edward Rutledge of South Carolina then requested the determination might be put off to the next day, as he believed his colleagues, though they disapproved of the resolution, would then join in it for the sake of unanimity. The ultimate question, whether the House would agree to the resolution of the committee, was accordingly postponed to the next day, when it was again moved, and South Carolina concurred in voting for it. In the mean time, a third member had come post from the Delaware counties and turned the vote of that Colony in favor of the resolution. Members of a different sentiment attending that morning from Pennsylvania also, her vote was changed, so that the whole twelve Colonies who were authorized to vote at all gave their voices for it; and, within a few days, the convention of New York approved of it and thus supplied the void occasioned by the withdrawing of her delegates from the vote.

Congress proceeded the same day to consider the Declaration of Independence, which had been reported and lain on the table the Friday preceding and on Monday referred to a committee of the whole. The pusillanimous idea that we had friends in England worth keeping terms with still haunted the minds of many. For this reason, those passages which conveyed censures on the people of England were struck out, lest they should give them offense. The clause, too, reproaching the enslaving the inhabitants of Africa was struck out in complaisance to South Carolina and Georgia, who had never attempted to restrain the importation of slaves, and who, on the contrary, still wished to continue it. Our Northern brethren also, I believe, felt a little tender under those censures; for though their people had very few slaves themselves, yet they had been pretty considerable carriers of them to others. The debates, having taken up the greater parts of the 2d, 3d and 4th days of July, were, on the evening of the last, closed; the Declaration was reported by the committee, agreed to by the House, and signed by every member present, except Mr. Dickinson.

Fraunces' Tavern Relic of Revolutionary Days

Fraunces' tavern, in New York city, was once a meeting place for Revolutionists, later a warehouse, and still later a saloon, but now stands restored to its aspect as a tavern. The Sons of the Revolution in the state of New York bought the old building after it had descended to the status of a saloon. It has been reconstructed, and its interior and exterior conform as nearly as possible to the Fraunces' tavern of Revolutionary days.

John Adams and the delegates to the second Continental congress stopped overnight there on the way to Philadelphia. The Sons of Liberty and the Vigilance committee met there on April 22, 1774, and planned the attack on the London, New York's "tea party." In August, 1775, a shot fired from the British ship Asia struck the building. The New York provincial congress assembled there from May 18 to June 30, 1776.

During the Revolutionary war the tavern contributed its lead window weights to the manufacture of bullets. These bullets were used with effect at Forts Montgomery and Clinton. It also was the birthplace of the first chamber of commerce in America, in 1780.

Waste to Market Poor Vegetables

If Not Good When They Leave Ground Never Will Be Any Better.

Vegetables that are not good when they leave the field will never be any better, according to Paul Work of the New York State College of Agriculture. It does not pay to put poor vegetables on the market. For the good of both the producer and the consumer poor stuff should be plowed under for fertilizer or fed to live stock and not dumped on the vegetable market.

Grading Pays.

Careful grading of vegetables pays. When the produce merchant or the customer sees poor specimens of vegetables or fruit in a carload or a basket, he judges the whole lot to be poor in quality. The buyer assumes that there is more of the worst than he sees, and he therefore uses the defective specimens to make the seller lower his price. The cost of marketing is so great that low grade vegetables are seldom worth shipping or taking to market.

Less Storage.

Storage of vegetables is less important than formerly because shipping under refrigeration has improved. The movement of products to market over long distances and during all seasons of the year has reduced the need for long time storage. However, the fluctuation of prices from day to day and the eagerness of merchants as well as growers to catch the best prices has increased the use of storage plants for short periods. Refrigerated storage is used more because it keeps the vegetables in the best condition. Burying vegetables in pits and other forms of outdoor storage are rapidly going out of use.

Gently Sloping Hill Is

Best Orchard Location

Never plant fruit trees or small fruits in low places with higher ground surrounding them. Such places are altogether too frosty to be safe for fruits. The best location is on a gently sloping hill where there is a free movement of air. This, in general, should be on the eastern, or southeastern or southern side of the slope in order to take advantage of the protection against western and northwestern winds.

A southern slope has a little disadvantage in that it warms up a bit earlier in the spring than a northern slope and may make a day or two difference in blossoming time. This, of course, increases slightly the hazard from frost, but the benefits accruing from the warm, sheltered side of the hill are much greater than the danger.

Brood Sows Should Be Given Lots of Water

Brood sows should be given very little grain for 24 hours after farrowing but should have all the water they desire. The first feed given after farrowing should be limited in amount and fed as a thin slop. The amount fed is increased gradually as the pigs need more milk, until in 10 or 15 days the sow is being fed all she will eat. The brood sow's ration during the suckling period should be slightly laxative and provide for increased milk production to meet the needs of the pigs.

Plowing Under Rape

Rape does not take nitrogen from the air or add anything to the soil which it does not take from the soil in making its growth. The advantage gained in plowing under a crop of green rape lies in the added vegetable matter which goes back into the soil. The decomposition of the vegetable matter reacts on soil particles and liberates plant food so that a better crop is likely to follow. However, you have added no fertilizer to the land.

Farm Notes

Alfalfa hay supplies cheap protein. A successful farm cannot be located by observation alone.

Sanitary conditions are necessary to prevent diseases on a farm just as in a hospital.

Co-operative marketing of farm products is one way of increasing the farmer's bargaining ability.

Late fall plowing will destroy some of the hibernating worms, but it is not as effective as the earlier plowing.

Oats can be made into reasonably good silage. However, the oats should be cut before the stems have become woody.

Don't neglect to thin the radishes to an inch apart if you want early radishes of uniform size and quality. Don't make them fight to live.

Sturdy, healthy, well-hardened plants that have been transplanted at least once are generally superior to ordinary unhardened plants.

When cutworms are found to be working on plants, quick action must be taken to stop them. They can destroy a stand of crop in a short time.

"Now you'll like bran"

Millions choose this ally against constipation because it is so effective and the bran flakes are so delicious

AFTER OPERATIONS

"I was three times under an operation and I was very weak and nervous and could not eat. I suffered for ten years. I learned about Lydia E. MOKENA

Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Heiman are expected home this week from a delightful vacation trip to Colorado. They spent some time in Denver where they were met by their son Alfred who came from California on a motorcycle to join them.

Mrs. Albert Strassenberg underwent a major operation at the St. Francis hospital, Blue Island last Wednesday. She is improving nicely.

The Misses Esther and Hulda Hellmuth are enjoying their vacation to Missouri visiting with relatives in St. Louis and Altenburg.

Paul Roesner who has been confined to his home with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism, is much improved.

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH NOTES
Harold Sandall, Pastor
Church school 10:30 a. m.
Evening Worship 7:00 p. m.

It is gratifying to see that the attendance in the Church School is holding steady with a slight increase. This is remarkable for the summer months and we feel that many people are co-operating to make this possible. We appreciate knowing that Sunday drives are planned so as not to take the children away from their Sunday school.

The teachers and officers are meeting prior to Church school next Sunday to become more familiar with each others work. The Graded lessons which we are using throughout our school are more effectively used when the teachers are familiar with the whole plan.

The Pastor has heard so many remarks that Mokena has nothing to go to on Sunday evenings that with the help of abundant local talent the church is going to hold a few out of door services during the fore part of the summer. The success of this project will depend on how many people will help to boost such an enterprise. Other places are doing it with remarkable results. Further announcement will be made later.

The Andrew Wachter family have returned to their home the past week. The damage done by a recent gas explosion has not been repaired as yet pending a settlement with the Public Service Co., for the damage caused when one of their workmen inadvertently ignited the gas while trying to locate a leak.

The building formerly occupied by the Leonhardt shoe shop is being redecorated and painted preparatory to the opening of a radio and electrical shop by C. E. Sippel.

Adam Barenz is ill in his home. Otto Bartels, the new cashier of the Mokena State Bank has moved into the Knapp dwelling recently vacated by the Howatt family who have moved to Chicago. Mr. Howatt was the local manager of the former A. & P. store.

Irma Yunker and Margaret Maue who have been clerking at the Sippel store, have taken up positions in Chicago.

The Rock Island railroad has made a big improvement by way of building a cinder platform east of the depot so that passengers coming in on suburban trains are not obliged to step in the mud in wet weather.

Ernest G. Tonn arrived home last Wednesday from Texas making the trip by auto. Mr. Tonn has taken up the painting business during his vacation and has been awarded several house painting jobs. He expects to return to Texas in the fall as he has been re-engaged to teach school.

Mr. and Mrs. August Werner have returned from an auto trip to New York and report a delightful time.

PRESIDENT HOOVER TO MAKE NO 4th OF JULY ADDRESS

President Hoover has many invitations to speak on July 4th, but it is improbable he will accept any of them. Instead he will devote the day to a much needed rest in the country near Washington. The President and Mrs. Hoover are both lovers of the great outdoors, and seldom miss an opportunity to spend some time in the mountains in near-by Virginia or Maryland. And when in California they spend the night out of doors without even the shelter of a tent.

WOULD PUT CIGARETTES UNDER DRUG LAW

Inclusion of tobacco and tobacco products within the scope of food and drug law is provided in the Senate by Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah. The measure, Senator Smoot stated, also would empower the food and drug insecticide administration to proceed against tobacco manufacturers whose advertisements and sales claims are partly or wholly unjustified by facts.

SOME SENATORS MAY NEED TO EXPLAIN OPPOSITION TO HOOVER PROGRAM

Senators from some of the farm states which Hoover carried by overwhelming majorities face the task of explaining to their constituents why they have so violently opposed the President in his legislative program. Opposition was expected from the Democrats, and they are not receiving so much criticism, but the anti-Hoover Republicans are in an entirely different situation, and some of them are worried now that they have made their fight against Hoover and lost.

Find out about GAS for HOUSE HEATING

Gas-heated, insulated home at 709 So. Cumberland Ave., Park Ridge. 6 rooms. Heating cost for twelve months $200

Gas heated, insulated home at 11 Shabbona Trail, Mt. Prospect. 6 rooms. Heating cost for twelve months $226

Gas-heated, insulated home at 318 Winer St., Park Ridge. 7 Rooms. Heating cost for twelve months $296

INVESTIGATE automatic gas heat for your home. Our heating engineer will be glad to go over your requirements and prepare a scientific estimate of all costs, submitting it for your consideration without any obligation.

After conclusive tests in many homes of our customers it has been shown that insulating material may be added to old houses and built into new homes so as to effect important savings of fuel, and make it possible to have gas heat at no greater cost than other automatic fuels. The cost of insulating is a worthwhile investment in summer comfort as well as saving fuel in winter. The insulation cost can be included in the gas heat installation charges.

You need not pay for gas heat installation when you order. Three-fourths of the cost may be postponed until October and then paid "Little by Little," with your monthly gas bill. Send the coupon, come in, or phone!

ILLINOIS BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

The Illinois general assembly adjourned sine die after a short perfunctory session June 20. A quorum was not present in either branch. Governor Emmerson transmitted veto message on three bills to the house. A large number of bills are still before the governor and the end of the month may not see them finished. The Chicago traction measures, together with a bill giving the Chicago sanitary district authority to issue $27,000,000 in bonds are among the important ones which are awaiting final consideration. Owing to the failure of the legislature to agree upon the terms of the proposed amendment to the revenue section of the state constitution, which Governor Emmerson had advocated in his campaign, it is thought that a special session may be called next April or May to consider that subject.

Illinois building permits during May were 25 per cent greater than in April but 14 per cent less than in May of last year, according to a report of the industrial commission of the Illinois department of labor.

H. B. Davidson, Springfield, was elected department commander of the Illinois Grand Army of the Republic which held its annual convention in Rockford recently.

Secretary of State William J. Stratton has issued a charter to the Illinois League of Republican Women, with headquarters at Chicago.

The Illinois Supreme court recently admitted a class of about 180 persons to the bar. Former Congressman James M. Graham gave the dinner address.

Striking at infant and maternal mortality, which he declares is still unnecessarily high in many parts of Illinois, Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, has ordered a detailed study of prevailing conditions in three typical counties.

Governor Emmerson has vetoed a bill sponsored by Representative Grover C. Hoff, Decatur, which would require probate judges to be licensed attorneys.

Steps will be taken by officials of the Abraham Lincoln association and the Springfield art association to call a huge mass meeting in the state arsenal or some other large auditorium this summer for the purpose of effecting an organization to make possible the production of a Lincoln pageant in 1933.

Governor Emmerson has signed the bill introduced by Senator A. S. Cuthbertson, Bunker Hill, appropriating $750,000 for a bridge across the Illinois river at Hardin. The improvement was urged by residents of Calhoun county, one of the largest apple producing counties in the state. The bridge bill was urged by Joseph Page, veteran newspaper editor of the Jersey County Democrat, Jerseyville.

New signs marking the way to Lincoln's tomb and home have been erected by the Springfield Chamber of Commerce. These markers are shaped like a shield with an arrow pointing the way and each one is decorated with two flags.

Governor Emmerson has vetoed a bill by Representative Roger F. Little, Champaign, which would require road districts or railroads to maintain certain drainage district bridges across roads or highways. The bill was declared unconstitutional by Attorney General Carlstrom's office. This is the only measure the attorney general's office has turned down so far, while 171 measures have been approved.

Under a bill which has passed the house and senate, the Abraham Lincoln association will be authorized to make recommendations to the department of public works and buildings regarding the care of the Lincoln homestead in Springfield. All of the furniture in the homestead is privately owned by members of the Abraham Lincoln association, who have asked for state supervision of the home. This bill was introduced by Senator Florence Fifer Bohrer, Bloomington.

The state has cancelled the contract for the construction of the remaining piers of the bridge over the Illinois river at Florence, and has authorized the bondsmen, the National Security company, to complete the work. The construction has been greatly delayed in the past two years. The state plans to complete the remainder of the work at once.

Gov. L. L. Emmerson has signed senate bill No. 434, introduced by Senator Harry G. Wright, DeKalb; the measure is known as the call money bill and authorizes an interest charge at a rate greater than 7 per cent on loans of not less than $5,000 secured by warehouse receipts, bills of lading, stock, or other collateral security.

The executive committee of the Lincoln National Memorial highway has just completed a tour of the proposed part of the highway from Beardstown to Petersburg.

Though fourth in its number of wage earners, Illinois ranks today as third among the states of the Union in the value of its factory products and the number of its industrial plants.

Railroad travelers arriving and departing at Chicago have reached such numbers that they now total more than 138,700,000 annually, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Four persons debark or embark every second.

Representative George C. Dixon, Dixon, offers some interesting amendments in the house to a bill introduced by Representative Elmer C. Wilson, Kankakee, regulating aircraft traffic.

Prohibition agents seized two seventy-five gallon stills and 112 fifty-gallon barrels of whisky mash in a distillery at Steger, which they believe was being operated by the remnants of the Chicago Heights alcohol ring. Steve Paolle was arrested in the plant.

SCARFS AND PANELS FLUTTER; PRINTED CREPE IDEAL FABRIC

COSTUME designers have discovered that nothing so sets forth the chic and charm of sheer materials as to give them carte blanche to float and flutter at sweet will in guise of scarfs, panels and various capelets as novel and unique as genius can devise them. Wherefore the newest chiffon frocks are indulging in an orgy of shimmering airy-fairy drapes and contrivances which bespeak grace and beauty.

Yokes are especially tricky this season. One never can tell whether the modern yoke will remain true to its kind, or whether it will suddenly develop a "complex." Most of the new intricately designed yokes do just that.

The yoke in the picture is a fair example of the capriciousness of yokes. It started just like any sedate yoke being stitched flat across the front of the frock. However, when it arrives at the shoulders it assumes a dual role in that it glides into a graceful, floating scarf.

The majority of last minute styles elaborate the yoke idea in that they endow it with fantastic interpretations, such as, for instance, the tie yoke which enhances so many necklines. In looking up patterns for summer frocks it behooves the woman who does her own sewing to select those which exploit fanciful yokes.

Another outcome of the vogue for a soft "dressmaker" styling is the presence of cunning capes and hertha collars. Under the magic touch of dainty, filmy, floating draperies such as are now exploited, the crudities of sleevelessness vanishes. As the sea-pathway of the mode. Just now, ing summer-day dress pictured below a turn-down collar and ends in a long Paris has gone polka-dot mad.

Even to the accessories of a Parisienne exploit the polka-dot motif. A polka-dotted parasol, a handbag to match—yes, indeed, polka dots are given a prominent place in the French mode.

In choosing silk prints for the smart, daytime frock, again do women in the French capital express their preference for polka-dot themes. The striking summer-day dress pictured below is made of navy blue crepe de chine with large white polka dots. Those who know fabrics declare that printed crepe is a material ideal for the dress one wants to wear and wear.

Also, please notice that this particular crepe used for the gown shown here adopts blue and white for its color scheme, for, blue and white, be it known, are playing a leading part on fashion's fabric program, appearing together in plaids, checks, stripes as well as in floral and modernistic patterns.

son advances one realizes how cleverly designers are offsetting the unsleeved trends by incorporating all sorts of over-the-shoulder drapes, wherein novelty and grace work hand-in-hand to achieve winsome feminine lines.

FOOD FOR OUTINGS

As this is the time when picnic baskets are packed we need to brush up on a few things to put into them.

Cut ginger bread into squares and the squares into halves to make a sandwich and spread with cottage cheese well seasoned and enriched with cream to make it of the consistency to spread. Put the squares together and serve. Sponge cake may be used in the same way with this filling: Take grated cheese, cream and butter with sugar, mix well and spread on sponge cake cut in half, making two layers. Ice the cake and serve as a layer cake.

Campfire Apples.—Core apples and fill with raisins, wrap them in mint or sassafras leaves, cover with clay and bake in the ashes of the campfire. When the covering is removed the flavored apple will repay you for your trouble.

A good sandwich which is filling and tasty is prepared using baked beans covered with chopped stuffed olives.

Candied Orange Peel.—Put the peel from eight oranges in cold water; heat to the boiling point and cook gently until very tender. Drain; put into cold water and when cold remove the white membrane. Boil one cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of water together until the sirup spins a thread. Add the peel and cook until it looks clear. Drain on a wire cooler and dry in the air until well dried. Roll in sugar and pack in air tight container.

Chocolate Popcorn.—Cut one-half pound of ordinary bitter chocolate into pieces, place in a double boiler over very hot water, stir until dissolved. Add two tablespoonfuls of confectioner's sugar and one-half ounce of cocoa butter. Beat well and while the chocolate is still warm (not hot) dip the popcorn with sugar tongs. Spread on waxed paper to cool. This recipe may be divided for a smaller amount, as this will make a large quantity.

Good Things to Eat.

Do you remember grandmother's sour cream biscuit? Well, try these and see if they taste as good:

Sour Cream Biscuit.—Sift two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of soda all together twice.

Add one tablespoonful of butter, two if the cream is not very thick and rich, and when well blended add one cupful of thick sour cream. Handle quickly, pat out to one-half inch thickness on a floured board and cut into biscuits and bake in a hot oven twelve minutes.

Grapejuice Sponge.—Cover one and one-half tablespoonfuls of gelatin with two tablespoonfuls of cold water, let stand ten minutes. Scald one-half cupful of grape juice and add the gelatin, one-third of a cupful of sugar, stir until well dissolved, then add one more cupful of grape juice and cool until the mixture begins to thicken; add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and beat until stiff. Pile in sherbet glasses and serve decorated with whipped cream sweetened.

Spanish Cabbage Salad.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of finely shredded cabbage, one cupful of diced cucumbers, both chilled in cold water separately. Toss and drain, add french dressing and mix with one-half of an onion finely minced.

On a salad plate arrange a mound of cabbage and onion, surround with a ring of ripe tomato, then one of cucumber. Sprinkle with hard-cooked egg finely chopped and serve with mayonnaise which has been seasoned with chili sauce.

Vanilla Custard Fluff.—Crush one junket tablet and dissolve in a tablespoonful of cold water. Add to one pint of lukewarm milk one and one-half tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and the dissolved tablet. Stir until well blended, then pour into individual glasses, after folding in the well beaten whites of two eggs.

Noodle Ring.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when smooth add one cupful of milk and stir until the sauce boils. Add one cupful of cheese put through the meat chopper, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika, one-half teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper. Add two-thirds cupful of noodles, cooked and cut into squares, two egg yolks beaten light, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into a ring mold which has been well greased and bake in a pan of hot water. Turn out on a chop plate, fill the center with creamed ham, surround with asparagus tips and hot green peas. Garnish with dashes of paprika on the noodle ring and a sprig of parsley in the center of the ham.

THE STORY

Jim Stanley, wealthy young New York business man, unable to concentrate in his dictation to his desk telephone, has the machine taken to his home, intending to finish his work there. Rollin Waterman, his business partner and closest friend, comes in. Both men are awed by the love with Doris Colby. Stanley proposes they toss a coin to determine which of them shall, that evening, first ask her to marry him. Waterman wins. Nina Morgan, Waterman's secretary, also his mistress, has overheard his conversation with Stanley and suggests Waterman's plan to desert her. Waterman tells her he is practically penniless and must make a rich marriage. He urges Nina to go to Doris and tell her she (Nina) has been wronged—but by Stanley. The girl accepts. Doris admits to her father her interest in both Stanley and Waterman, but is unable to make up her mind which to marry. Nina goes to Doris with her story, securing a promise that Doris will not reveal the source of her information. She convinces Doris of Stanley's duplicity, and leaves her broken hearted, and realizing that it is Stanley she really has loved. Waterman that evening asks Doris to marry him, and she accepts him. According to the arrangement, Stanley accepts the situation, and as a wedding present gives his share of the business to Waterman.

CHAPTER V—Continued

Looking back upon that night in after years Stanley could never remember exactly how it passed. He had a confused recollection of the streets of New York gleaming wet and lambent under the lamps—a panorama of faces at the club, sounds of more or less familiar voices, the flick of cards, the tinkle of glasses—a night of troubled dreams and restless sleep, of pacing to and fro, of the pale advent of dawn through his eastward-looking windows, a hasty breakfast scarcely touched, the sound of the early church bells pealing over the chimney tops, automatic donning of his clothes—finally the office.

Nothing in New York is so greatly changed in outward aspect as the business district on Sunday. All this struck Stanley forcibly as he walked leisurely southward from his two-room apartment in Greenwich village on his way to keep this most unusual appointment with his employer.

He found Stanley already at his desk, engaged in sorting out a heap of papers.

"Sit down for a bit, Frank, I'll be ready for you in a moment."

Immediately Stanley knew that something unusual had happened. When Stanley was concerned he had an extra sense, for Stanley was his god. The younger man some years before had rescued him from the heap of human wreckage wherein he struggled, like a sort of human jackstraw, and had given him for the first time in his life a sense of security and peace. It had been done originally upon a whim, but it had been the best thing that had ever happened in Stanley's sordid, unhappy life, and it had also been a very good thing for Stanley. Few men are so lucky as to possess the concentrated, whole-hearted unselfish devotion of another human being. In Stanley, Stanley possessed this jewel. And to do him justice, unobserving though he was in many ways, he knew it.

To Wilson, Stanley was just about the whole of life. Stanley was his guide, philosopher and friend, and as such he had devoted his life to the study of that friend. Therefore it is not strange that he could gather instantly from Stanley's voice and manner the conviction that something was wrong. He sat down feeling rather queer. In a moment Stanley pushed away the heap of papers.

"Frank," he said, "I want you to know from me before you hear it from anybody else, that I am going to quit the business." He waited, but Wilson said nothing—he was too shocked to speak.

"Yes," said Stanley, "I have had enough of it. It bores me. I want a change, a great big change, and I'm going to get it right away. I'm going to quit the business. What's more, I'm going a long way off—to India, to be exact."

"India?" said Wilson, finally finding his voice. "Why India?"

"Why not? Anything wrong with India?"

"No," said Wilson vaguely, "not that I know of. I don't know much about it."

"Neither do I," said his employer, "but I mean to. One thing I do know about it—it's different from New York, and that's the main idea."

"But I haven't asked you to give up your Sunday and come down here to the office merely to tell you this. I have asked you here to tell you that during my absence I want you to remain in my personal employ. As you know—no one better—the affairs of this firm are but a part of my business. I shall need some one to represent me while I am gone, and I have selected you."

"Mr. Stanley!" gasped Wilson. "Yes," went on the other, "if you will be so kind. You've been with me for five years now, and no man ever had a more intelligent or a more devoted servant—I use the word in its best sense. If it weren't for you I couldn't go away as I am going, but I know that with you on the job I can go in perfect security."

"But," objected Wilson, who had now recovered his ability to think, "I should fancy that perhaps Mr. Waterman—"

"Not at all. Not at all. Not that under some circumstances I might not have chosen him for this responsibility, but, as it is, I think not. You see, he will have enough to do to run this business."

"Oh-h—he's going to run the business!"

Had Stanley been less intent upon his own affairs he would have found

"You see, after tomorrow, the business of this firm will belong entirely to Waterman."

occasion for reflection in Wilson's tone. As it was, he missed the eloquence of the inflection and went on:

"You see, after tomorrow, the business of this firm will belong entirely to Waterman."

"Indeed?"

"Yes, I've arranged with Atherton & Brownell over the telephone to send their head clerk to the office this morning. We'll go over all the books with him, so that when the office opens tomorrow morning, the necessary documents can be drawn up and the whole transfer of my interests can be completed before the close of business tomorrow afternoon."

"Isn't this," said Wilson feebly, "rather rushing it?"

"Perhaps, but under the circumstances it is necessary, because I leave on Wednesday."

"How long are you to be gone?"

"I have no idea. I shall stay until I am homesick, if ever that happens. Now I suppose that for a time you will have to stay on here in this office. For the moment there is no substitute for you. You really know more about the details of the business than anybody in the place, including both partners. Waterman will need you for a time. In the course of a few months doubtless he will have been able to break in somebody else. When that happens, if you wish, you may leave the office and devote yourself entirely to my affairs. Of course you'll have to rent an office of your own in some building convenient to the Street. But I needn't go into details about that. Your judgment is bound to be good."

and you may do precisely as you please.

"I shall, of course, give you my power of attorney, and the first thing tomorrow morning we'll go to the Gotham Trust company and arrange things so that you shall have access to my box in the safety deposit vault. I don't know yet exactly what my forwarding address will be, but that I can always send you by cable."

"Oh, yes, and another thing. I shall give you a salary in keeping with the new responsibilities which you will have to shoulder. I've been thinking that perhaps ten thousand dollars a year might be all right, if that's satisfactory to you."

The little clerk, with a gesture so unusual that it indicated the depth of the perturbation with which he suffered, ran both hands through his grizzled hair.

"Ten thousand a year!" he gasped. For the first time Stanley smiled. "What's the matter," he said, "isn't it enough?"

"Ten thousand a year," repeated the other. "Why, it's ridiculous."

"Well," grinned Stanley, "make it twelve."

"That wasn't what I meant at all, sir. Never in my life have I dreamed of so much money."

"Well, don't dream now. Take it and shut up about it. I'm not exactly a poor man—nobody knows that better than you. For the management of such a property as this, ten thousand a year is little enough—so we'll say no more about it. Your salary begins tomorrow—in addition to which, of course, Waterman will continue to pay you your present salary as long as you remain with him."

But the little man continued to stare at his employer with open mouth. Ten thousand dollars a year! When he first met Stanley he had been employed as a cashier in the Bon Ton restaurant at Third avenue and Forty-sixth street, and he got each week the munificent sum of twenty dollars and his food—and very poor food it was.

Nevertheless, overwhelmed as he was at his sudden rise to affluence, the little clerk's heart sank within him for he loved his employer and he knew instinctively that something had gone very wrong with him. Instinctively, too, he connected it with Waterman. He hazarded a question.

"I hope, sir, that nothing has gone wrong?"

"Wrong? No—no indeed. I'm just bored, bored with business—sick and tired of New York. I want a change—I'm going to get it. That's all."

Wilson was not convinced. A man may laugh and chaff and even sing, but he cannot fool his dog. If he is unhappy the dog knows it, and Wilson knew that Stanley was unhappy. But he did not pursue the point further, reflecting that it would not be long before he learned the truth.

"Well, sir," he said, "I'm going to miss you, if you'll allow me to say so. You're about the only friend I have in the world, you see."

"Thanks, Wilson, thanks. I shall miss you, too, but the knowledge that you're here on the job will nevertheless make me very happy."

"I don't know how to thank you, sir."

"Don't do it, don't do it. Don't waste your time on such silly business. If there is any balance of gratitude in the matter it's all on my side. I have taken you a little too much for granted. I am afraid, but as I look back upon the last few years, I suddenly realize all that your intelligent devotion has meant to me. I'm not going to thank you for it, I'm just going to hope that what I am doing now will make you see once and for all how much I appreciate it."

The little man rose and turned away. The truth was that he was very near to tears. Stanley saw it, and did the tactful thing.

"Well, come now, we've got a lot to do," he said briskly. "Let's get at it."

A little before this time Rollin awoke. The first thing he was conscious of was that his head ached abominably—the next thing was that he knew perfectly well why. Conscious, as he left the Colby house the night before, of an overwhelming need of some sort of refuge from the torrent of conflicting thoughts that were sweeping over his brain, he had found that refuge in a way that of late had grown increasingly common. In short, he got drunk.

In spite of his throbbing head, he could not suppress a feeling of satisfaction as he realized that so far his schemes had succeeded to a perfection he scarcely dared to hope for. Not only was he engaged to Doris Colby, with all that meant in the way of social prestige and pecuniary advancement, but most unexpectedly he found himself, as the result of Stanley's generosity, the sole possessor of a valuable business in which previously his ownership had been nominal. It was too good to be true.

Nevertheless, self-centered as he was through the years of growing and habitual concentration on his ego, he was even now conscious that for this success he had paid a heavy price. Nor was the payment complete. There would be further installments. There must come a time, he vaguely guessed, when Doris must acquire some inkling of his character. There were certain heavy obligations which he must shortly meet. Most of these he expected to be able to discharge through the profits of the business of which he was now sole owner. There would be further installments of the debt that must be paid to Nina Morgan. If Nina Morgan was under few illusions regarding Waterman's character, Waterman was under even fewer illusions about hers. He called her a business woman, and he knew that she was all of that. She would demand her pound of flesh. Well, he would pay it. On the whole, as he mentally balanced his books, he was not ill-pleased with the situation.

For the most part he was not a conscious rogue. It was vanity and not evil purpose that had brought him to this pass. He had been born with Rolls-Royce tastes and a flivver income. He was gifted with uncommon good looks, great surface charm of manner, a conspicuous position in society, and he had for years strained every point to live up to them.

He had always been a front-page character and he loved that position. Wherever the limelight fell there was Waterman. The sailing of the newest, fastest liner on her maiden voyage, the debut of the latest operatic star, a Duse first night, exhibitions of visiting royalty—no such function passed without the decoration of his presence. If anyone had a social shop window to decorate he used Waterman if he could get him. All this was breath to his nostrils, but he had found no way in which to make it remunerative.

His telephone tinkled at his ear. Turning on his elbow he took the instrument from the little maple table which stood beside his bed and the voice of Doris said:

"Good morning, Rolly, did I wake you?"

"No," he said, "I've been awake some time."

"I am just leaving the house to go to church, and I thought perhaps you might meet me at the door when the service is over."

"Splendid, splendid. I'll be there, and if you're not doing anything for lunch, we might lunch together at the Ritz."

"All right," she said, "St. Bartholomew's you know—not far from noon—unless the sermon's unusually long."

"I'll be there," he said, and hung up.

"All right," she said, "St. Bartholomew's you know—not far from noon—unless the sermon's unusually long."

"I'll be there," he said, and hung up.

REVIEW: PROPHETS AND KINGS OF JUDAH'S DECLINE

GOLDEN TEXT—I have loved thee with an everlasting love, therefore with loving kindness have I drawn thee.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Stories Retold.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Learning to Serve God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—True and False Leaders.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's True Prophets.

The quarterly review always brings its problems. No set method can be prescribed. The grade, the aptitude of the pupils and the genius of the teacher are determining factors of the problem. For seniors and adults, two methods are suggested.

I. Character Study of the Kings and Prophets of the Period.

Biography is always fascinating and profitable. In the use of this method, assignments should be made a week ahead. As to the kings of this period, a study should be made of their strong and weak points, and suitable lessons be drawn from them. As to the prophets, the nature of the ministry of each should be studied.

II. The Summary Method.

This method involves the terse statement of the salient facts of each lesson with its central teaching. This method, to be effective, calls for assignments to be made a week in advance. Different minds will greatly vary. The following statements are offered as suggestions:

Lesson for April 7.

Isaiah at the beginning of Isalah's ministry or later when called to a deeper experience, he had a vision of the majesty and holiness of the living God. The leading lesson is that a real sight of the living God discloses the sinfulness of man.

Lesson for April 14.

In leading the people back to God Hezekiah proclaimed a passover. The passover was a memorial of the nation's deliverance through the shedding of the blood of a sacrificial lamb. The lamb typified Christ. The only way for a sinning and divided people to get back to God and be united is around the crucified Lord.

Lesson for April 21.

Isaiah sought to comfort the people by assuring them that the Lord God as the Messiah was coming to reign over the earth, and deliver them from bondage, and shepherd them. The only possible deliverance from the world is the coming of Jesus Christ and the establishment of His Kingdom.

Lesson for April 28.

Salvation of God's people was to be accomplished through the suffering of their Messiah. At Christ's first coming He suffered the penalty of our sin. His suffering resulted in a spiritual progeny. Life out of death is the law governing the universe—natural and spiritual.

Lesson for May 5.

While the temple was in process of renovation, the law of God was found and read to the king. This brought great disturbance to his mind as he realized the enormity of the nation's sins. God's Word has power to convict of sin and effect a revival.

Lesson for May 12.

God called Jeremiah before he was born, overcame his timidity, and sent him to warn his people of coming judgment. Though violently opposed and persecuted, God delivered him.

Lesson for May 19.

Jeremiah called the people to obedience to God's Word. The only way to avert God's judgment is to return unto Him and render obedience.

Lesson for May 26.

God will restore Israel to Palestine. Israel will return and possess the land. Jesus Christ will then come and enter into a new covenant, writing the law of God in their hearts.

Lesson for June 2.

Because Jeremiah faithfully declared God's law, he was hated and cast into a dungeon. Those who faithfully declare God's law shall suffer.

Lesson for June 9.

The Rechabites out of filial loyalty to their father abstained from the use of wine. Jeremiah gave them a public test as an example to Judah. Obedience to earthly fathers brings blessings, but obedience to God brings greater blessings.

Lesson for June 16.

Judah went into captivity according to God's Word, which cannot fail.

Lesson for June 23.

Psalms 103 is entirely devoted to praise to God. Those who have experienced the life of God in the soul will bless Him with all their being.

God Knows All

I will govern my life and thoughts as if the whole world were to see the one and to read the other, for what does it signify to make anything a secret to my neighbor, when to God, who is the searcher of our hearts, all our privacies are open?—Seneca.

Religion Is Necessary

Education without religion is worth very little, just as cleverness without character is very barren.—Ald. Leslie Owen.

TINLEY PARK

BACHELORS GROVE
LUTHERAN CHURCH
Wm. Greve, pastor

Regular services will be held Sunday, June 30, at 9:30 o'clock.

The Church and School picnic will be held in the afternoon in the woods near Charles MAGER'S residence, east of Tinley Park.

The Y. P. S. will meet next Tuesday evening, July 2, at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Albert Strassenburg who underwent an operation for the removal of an inward goitre at the St. Francis hospital at Blue Island last Wednesday is convalescing nicely.

Postmaster Christ Andres has returned from Overton, Nebraska. He attended the wedding of Miss Alma Goebel.

Mrs. Carl Goebel is expected to return home this week from the St. Bernard hospital, Englewood where she underwent a recent operation.

Mrs. George Schreiber accompanied by her brother Carl Eichler and wife, left Wednesday evening for Lakefield, Minnesota, to see the former sister, Mrs. Henry Ahrens who is critically ill. Mrs. Ahrens was a former Tinley Park resident.

While coming out of the Coopers Grove Lutheran church last Sunday, Mrs. Wm. Henke slipped and fell on a concrete walk and broke her arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Keuch have moved to Oak Forest.

Mrs. Henry Olson has started breaking ground for her new home in the Breitharth subdivision.

Mrs. Frank Baldwin was over come by the heat last Saturday and was quite ill for several days.

Frank Mancke has started building operations on his new residence.

Homer Hannrahan has begun building operations on his new residence.

Mrs. Lena Funk was pleasantly surprised last week when her brother, Emil Gebert of Paulina, Iowa, called on her. She had not seen him for many years. He was a delegate to the Lutheran convention at Lake Forest.

The Tinley Park ball team plays the Blue Island Friscoes here Sunday. Wm. Mancke who has been serving as flagman, having passed the age limit, has been retired. Stuart Kincaid of Trenton, Mo., is taking

ORLAND PARK

The Daily Vacation Bible school of the Orland Park M. E. Church is now under way. It is being run under the fine supervision of Miss Clara Myerick who has charge of the Primary department, Miss Dorothy Nelson of Northwestern University who is in charge of the Junior and Intermediate department and Miss Dorothy Cooper in charge of the beginners. They are being assisted by Miss Lylas Kay and Miss Ruth Ludwig.

There is about 50 children enrolled in the school and they all seem to be enjoying it very much.

The Adult Bible Class of the Orland Park M. E. Church held a straw berry social at the church Tuesday evening. It was very well attended and all seemed to have a good time.

The Orland M. E. church will hold their annual 4th of July picnic at Creers Grove. A special program of games and sports of all kinds is being planned. Everyone is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Creer and son Clarence, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Cooper and daughter Eleanor Mae have just returned from a two weeks vacation with relatives in Ia., S. Dakota and Wisconsin. They report good fishing, good crops and a good time.

In Memoriam

KNIPPLE—In fond and loving memory of our dear son and brother Raymond J. Knipple, killed by an E. J. & E., engine, two years ago today, June 29, 1927.

Two sad years ago today, Our dear son was taken away. Dear Ray we often sit and think of you,

When we are all alone, For memory is the only friend That grief can call its own.

In Pleasant Hill softly sleeping, Where the flowers gently wave; Lies the one we loved so dearly In his lonesome silent grave.

The flowers that we lay upon you May wither and decay, But the love we have for you dear son and brother

Will never fade away. We cannot say, and we will not say, That he is dead. He is just away. With a cherry smile and a wave of the hand,

He has wandered into an unknown land.

Signed—MOTHER, DAD, BROTHER AND SISTER.

his place.

Henry Goeb attended the funeral of his aunt held in Chicago last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goeb entertained out of town guests Sunday. Amelia Chrystal was bitten by a dog one day last week.

The Town Doctor

(THE DOCTOR OF TOWNS)

At this time of year, there are several hundred thousand people throughout the length and breadth of the land who are thinking about vacation, and vacation, to most of them, means going some place.

That is the way it should be. This is the greatest nation in the world for "going places", and may such never cease.

To travel is to live. To sit sloth-like in one place is to see nothing. Travel is education - the most pleasant form of education known to man for it "peoples the heart and mind with pictures that never fade". Travel gives a character of experience to our knowledge, and brings the figures upon the tablet of memory into strong relief.

Get away from the surroundings with which you are so "contemptuously familiar". Get away from the daily grind - go places, see things and LEARN, by contact with those of a different clime. If you live South, go North - if your habitat is East, go West. If you live on the plains, go look at an ocean, if you have never seen a mountain, go gaze at one, before you are any older. And in the going, SEE what there is to see. Study how towns do things - how others who make their living as you make yours, conduct their affairs. What you learn depends solely on your natural powers and gift of conception, but regardless, you can't be the loser for such a venture.

There are, in America, so many worthwhile places to go - places that every American should see and know about, that lack of a destination is no excuse. The National Capital, the National Parks, historical points, prominent in America's history - in every section of the United States, in your very own state, there are places to go.

But whatever you do, wherever you go, remember that you are an ambassador of the place where you live, and as such, "sell" it to all those with whom you come in contact. Don't "gush" about it, don't overdo it, don't lie about it - just SELL it.

WHOOPEE!!

Collegiate Dance

AUGUST 3

The up and doing Triangle Club of Tinley Park is planning a big, magnificent dance. We'll repeat the date of this glorious event so you won't forget it "August 3rd."

We can't keep the secret any longer. Whoopee! Sammy Berk and his rhythym kings will feast your ears with their sweet melodious music. And another thing—Sammy Berk's "Golden Voice" will simply thrill you. Yes, he will sing choruses thruout the evening. Sammy's a very clever fellow and he will offer many unique features. Take it from us, both young and old will never regret if they come.

I suppose everybody's wondering just what the Triangle Club means by "Collegiate Dance". I'll give you a hint. The newly remodelled and redecorated Saenger hall with its new lighting effects will be in a college "atmosphere" on August 3rd. Come over on August 3rd and you will see.

See you next week.

SPEEDIEST GIRL OF ALL

This young lady takes to the water like the proverbial duck. She is as much at home there as she is ashore. All Germany takes its hat off to Fraulein Hunaeus as the speediest human being in that country when it comes to covering short distances in the water. Miss Hunaeus is the short distance swimming champion of the German Republic. (Herbert Photos, New York City.)
